About Me

I'm a Front-End Developer with a knack for blending creativity and technology. A native of France, I moved to England ten years ago, motivated by ambitious goals. My first professional journey took me to Michelin-starred kitchens, where I developed a fine-tuned sense of artistry and discipline. Eager for a new challenge, I pivoted to technology and secured a role as a junior software engineer. In this position, I managed databases and implemented new features. However, I found myself missing the creative freedom I had in my culinary career. Now, I'm excited to bring my artistic perspective to web development. As someone who is largely self-taught, I am constantly seeking new learning opportunities, and committed to delivering exceptional work in any field I choose to pursue.
